

Leaning Green

GWENDOLYN PLUMMER / SENIOR ASSOCIATE EDITOR

WHO: For the on-trend, the color lovers, and the down-to-earth.

WHAT: Green, in all its shades, may just be the color of the season. From nail polish to handbags to oversized coats, earthy greens are popping up everywhere in the fashion world right now—and optical is no exception.

WEAR: From OGI, style Bunny Hill shows off a bright, almost pastel green tone on a thin metal front and in an unexpected shape, offering a take on the trend that is full of personality and spunk. From Barton Perreira, style Magdalena is a butterfly sun frame that brings the green trend to the lens as well as the frame, creating an alluring, monochromatic statement piece. From Safilo's rag & bone, style 7043 offers a classic shape in on-trend forest green, paired with luxe dagger hinges for an elevated, fresh look. Finally, from Marchon's Flexon, EP8007 is one of the brand's first ever-plastic styles, pairing an earthy, crystal olive green with a masculine, durable shape and design.

WHY: Green may be on-trend right now, but it's also a versatile and classic color, lending itself to out of the box, trendy shapes just as well as it works with classic, conservative styles. There's a shade of green for everyone, and an eyewear shape to match, making this colorful trend one that's sure to last.
