

FLOWER POWER

JAMIE WILSON / ASSISTANT EDITOR

WHO: Self-proclaimed hippies and those who deem spring as their favorite season. Individuals sporting a green thumb as well as lovers of Marc Jacobs Daisy and the likes of Gucci's Cruise 2016 collection and Erdem's spring 2016 runway.

WHAT: Floral-inspired prints. They're bright, pleasant and the best way to head into the warmer months with a bang.

hello to the springtime floral theme with its relatively toned down color palette. The Koali 7964K from Morel in exclusive acetate is an ode to spring with its lime green, nature-inspired pattern throughout—a perfect pop of color. McGee Group's Vera Bradley Ashleigh frame features a blue and green "camofloral" on the top and outer temples, the ideal statement frame.

WHY: Spring is about rebirth and new beginnings. These bright colors and eye-catching prints are the ultimate way to celebrate the end of winter. More power to the flower.
